CONLEY TRIAL PUT OFF

AT REQUEST OF DORSEY

Will Not Be Held During Present Week-Smith to File

Demand

It was announced Thursday morning by Solicitor Dorsey that the case of Jim Conley, indicted as accessory after the fact for the murder of Mary Phagan, would not be called during the present week. The case was expected to come up Thursday. No reason was given by the solicitor for not calling the case, further than that there was a crush of cases for trial.

Conley's attorney, W. M. Smith, on Friday will file a written demand for a trial on the minutes of the court. This will insure Conley being tried during this or the following term of court.
